Funeral of Geo. Washington Told

Kingston Gazette Also Has Article on Return of Napoleon

BRISTON CITY, N. C., April 16.—Accounts of the death and burial of George Washington and return of Napoleon to France, were included in the Saturday, January 4, 1800 issue of the Kingston, Ulster county, N. Y. Gazette, in possession of Mrs. Anne D. Bryson, of Bryson City. The old Gazette contained messages of condolence from the House and Senate and the statement of President John Adams.

As a mark of respect, the Gazette, a folded sheet of four pages, carried a half-inch border of black around the inside of the publication, with a four-inch line of black between the second and third pages.

Under the caption, "Washington Entombed, George Town, Dec. 20," the Gazette read:

"On Wednesday last, the mortal part of Washington the Great—the Father of His Country and the Friend of Man, was consigned to the tomb with solemn honors and funeral pomp. A multitude of persons assembled from many miles round, at Mount Vernon, the choice abode and last residence of the illustrious chief. There were the groves—the spacious avenues, the beautiful and sublime scenes, the noble mansions—but alas the august inhabitant was now no more. The great soul was gone. In the lofty portico, where oft the Hero walked in all his glory lay the shrouded corpse."

On the ornament at the head of the coffin was inscribed, "Surge of judgment—about the middle of the coffin, Gloria Deo—and on the silver plate his name and date of death."

"Between three and four o'clock, the sound of artillery on the river, firing minute guns, awoke our solemn sorrow—the corpse was removed—a band of music with mournful melody melted the soul into all the tenderness of woe."

"The pall bearers were Cols. Sims, Ramsey, Payne, Gilpin, Marshall, and Little with mourners. Masonic brethren and citizens with the 'pavilion' infantry, guard, with arms reversed and clergy and music, with the General's horse with his saddle, holsters and pistol, preceding them."

In his message to both the House and Senate, President Adams said: "I feel myself alone, bereaved of my last brother. His example is now complete, and it will teach wisdom and virtue to magistrates, citizens and men, not only in the present age, but in future generations, as long as our History shall be read."

"Paris, Oct. 14.—Bonaparte and Berthier are in France at the very moment when the fame of their triumphs at Paris, they disembarked at Frouin. It appears that he was afraid of being taken by English had he attempted to land at Toulon. The frigate in which he came was escorted by two vessels. On reaching the shore Bonaparte and Berthier and all who were with him, fell down and kissed the land of liberty."

Two Men Quizzed In Girl's Murder

Police Have Theory About Slaying of Miss Mary Baker

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP)—Working on the theory that the brutal murder of Miss Mary Baker, 28-year-old Navy Department employee, was committed Friday by a man whom she knew well, Washington and Virginia police continued a scrutiny of her list of acquaintances and of her letters and belongings.

Virginia authorities discovered the ignition keys to her automobile and her door key, which had been picked up at a spot a quarter mile from the culvert near Arlington national cemetery, in which her body was found. The keys were found on a side road in the Department of Agriculture experiment farm by an employee while moving grass. Returning to the spot, the detectives found a blue bordered handkerchief and a doctor's bill bearing Miss Baker's name.

The discovery was followed by a decision to drain a nearby irrigation pond on the theory that missing articles of clothing and possibly the gun with which she was shot may have been thrown in the water.

Meanwhile, Washington detectives were questioning two men whose names were closely guarded, but who were close friends of the murdered girl.

Detectives planned also to question Miss Mildred Sperry and Miss Alga Skinner, who lived with Miss Baker at Lyon Park, Va., on the theory that they knew more about their friend's male acquaintances than they have told the authorities.

The two girls will be questioned upon returning from Oak Grove, Va., where Tuesday they attended the funeral of their companion. Services were held in the little church of which the Rev. Thomas P. Baker, the girl's father, is rector. The services were conducted by the Rev. J. Morris assistant pastor of the Washington church which Miss Baker attended.

Questioning of the jury shortly after Barber was brought into the large crowd which jammed the small courtroom. Rumors were current yesterday that the former Batesville high school athlete would ask for a change.

Only last year Barber was accused a basketball and football hero of the Batesville high school.

The former athlete still maintains his debonaire manner in which he kept since his return from Kentucky where he was apprehended about a month ago. The accused youth was escorted from the Independence county jail through a lane of curious onlookers to the courthouse. He did not glance neither to his right nor left nor did he recognize anyone.

Investing at Home

THE story which The Star published anonymously yesterday about the local man who bought stock from a stranger, reminds us that most investments are a nation-wide affair.

The blue-ribbon stocks belong to all sections and all states, and too often if we recognize the stock we accept the salesman as a matter of course. Loyalty to the home town suggests that we place our investments through local offices—and safety absolutely demands it.

Yet it is interesting to note that the quantity of first-class stocks sold to investors by traveling representatives, further proves what has long been contended in the argument between private and public investments—that is, that thrift has to be "sold" to the people.

A few years ago there was considerable agitation for the extension of the Postal Savings department into the insurance and investment field. It was argued that the federal government could handle insurance and other investments at a fraction of the cost levied by a private concern. This was true. But the private insurance companies answered that while the government could sell insurance cheaper, the public wouldn't buy voluntarily.

That is the whole secret of American business success. It has used the cost of sales promotion to get over a great message to the public; and the billions of dollars today invested in insurance and stocks and bonds will testify to the thrift habit of the greatest country in the world.

We do not take on additional insurance, voluntarily. Somebody "sells" us. A good stock salesman has often sown the seed for a wise investment.

We have no quarrel with that. But it does behoove the local citizen who finds himself persuaded to make a standard investment, to pause a moment over the wisdom of placing that investment with a local house or man who like himself is a member of our community life. The national scope of good investments makes this a particularly difficult kind of business to gather into strictly local channels—yet loyalty and safety require that we consult established agencies before committing ourselves.

Robinson of Arkansas

Arkansas people who have been keeping up with the historic naval parley in London during the last month have cause to be proud of a native son who throughout the conference has taken a leading part as a representative of the American people. That man, Arkansas people who know their own folk need not be told, is Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Lonoke, and his name is known to legions not only of Arkansas but over the nation as well.

It is the world naval conference that has more than anything else to put Senator Robinson forward in international affairs, but long before he was named to the London parley "Joe T." had been a favorite son of Arkansas. His private and political life, like many of America's most famous men, in days gone by, might be taken as an example for ambitious young men to follow. Born on a farm in Lonoke county, he finished the common schools of his county and later went to the University of Arkansas, where men of an older generation tell us, he worked his way, finishing with honors. Then, a teacher's certificate as his main asset, he earned enough money to complete a law course. Shortly thereafter he began a political career that carried him from district office to the governor's chair. Later he was chosen United States Senator, a position that several years later took him to the leadership of the minority Democratic party.

Arkansas folks are well acquainted with the fight that Senator Robinson led two years ago as a champion of the Democratic party, after being chosen to carry the banner of that party as a candidate for vice president of the United States. Arkansas have great cause to feel proud of their native son for the honor bestowed upon him by the Democrats of the nation, an honor which he deserved and a job which he carried out well.

Truly, Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas has brought honor to the state in more ways than one. This Arkansas farm boy who went to the legislature at 22, to the house of congress at 30 and to the governorship and the United States senate at 40 was chosen to represent his party in the race for vice president at 56 and now is one of the leading figures in a conference of world powers has made a mark for himself and for his native state. Joe T. Robinson has served the people of Arkansas faithfully. People of this state have known him long enough to know that he is a man foursquare, who stands for the principles of Democracy—in the words of the old saying, "equal rights for all and special privileges for none."

Willie'd Better Get a Move On, or There Won't Be Any Ice Cream Left!

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON—Herbert Hoover probably will have the opportunity to leave the impress of his beliefs on the future political and economic history of the United States longer than any other president for many decades. He is likely to have to appoint more justices to the supreme court than any other president in this century and it may fall to him to appoint more of them than any president since Washington.

Every four years the people have the privilege of changing the political complexion of the administration by electing a new president from the opposite party.

People Have No Choice

Every two years they can elect a new Congress. Each member of the House comes up for re-election biennially and the fact that a third of the seats in the Senate are filled each two years means that control of both houses can be shifted as often from one party to the other in case the voters desire.

But supreme court justices are appointed for life and the people of the country have neither the privilege of choosing them or of limiting their tenure.

And the fact that Mr. Hoover may have the appointments of a majority of the nine justices, which in effect would be naming the entire court—is the main reason why the Senate, which confirms or rejects presidential appointments, has been paying the closest attention to the kind of supreme court appointments Hoover has already made.

Calvin Coolidge had but one supreme court vacancy to fill in nearly six years. Harding had three in more than two years. Almost within a year after Hoover took office the resignation of the dying Taft and the death of Justice Sanford had given President Hoover two such vacancies to fill. Well, one hates to speculate on the longevity of the sitting justices, and they don't like to have it done—but it's a favorite indoor sport in Washington. Just to be different, your correspondent will mention no names. Nevertheless, there's one justice who recently passed his 88th birthday and another who is 73 and another who is 71, and a couple more in their late sixties, including one who has been ill for some time. Out of that group three resignations, to be euphemistic about it, are not the least unlikely during Hoover's regime, especially if he stays in for two terms. Perhaps more. And then you would have a Hooverized supreme court and would continue to have one for no one knows how long. If the president keeps on appointing men of the tender age of Judge John Johnson Parker, who is only 44 years old, one can imagine the supreme court staying Hooverized for 25 or 30 years. Anyway, that is the sort of thing that some of our brighter senators are imagining and it gives nothing less than the creeps to those who disagree with Mr. Hoover's economic philosophy. They argue that in a few years the recognized thought of the American people and of Congress and even of future presidents may be entirely different from Mr. Hoover's and that of his appointees. But the supreme court assumes the right to brand as unconstitutional legislation both passed by Congress and signed by the president.

Polly Walker Shares Glory in Song Show

The promise made by Jack Oakie in his first screen roles comes to triumphant fulfillment in Radio Pictures' gorgeous musical comedy of the fleet, "Hit the Deck," shown for the first time at the Saenger theatre last night.

Oakie as a wise-cracking gob gives a performance which places him high among the ranking comedians of the talking films. With a part exactly suited to his hilarious talents, he runs gaily away with the show. Sharing honors with Jack Oakie is Polly Walker, a recruit from the Broadway stage, who adds charm and an enchanting voice to the character of Loloo.

If nothing else, "Hit the Deck" proves for once and for all that the screen is the ideal medium for musical comedy.

Exterior sequences like the life-sized village street; a real landing warf with liberty boats plying between shore and a huge fleet resting at anchor all combine to lend reality to the theme, heretofore impossible on the stage.

He is Professor of the History of Medicine at Johns Hopkins University. Tribute was paid to him in celebrations held in scores of other cities throughout the world.

Lady Says She Has Taken Cardui In the Spring As a "Building Up" Medicine.

Buena Vista, Ohio.—"About ten years ago I had a break-down, and it seemed I could not get myself together again," says Mrs. Hester Malone, of this place. "I had no strength and was very nervous. I would have spells when I would just have to give up, for I could not keep going."

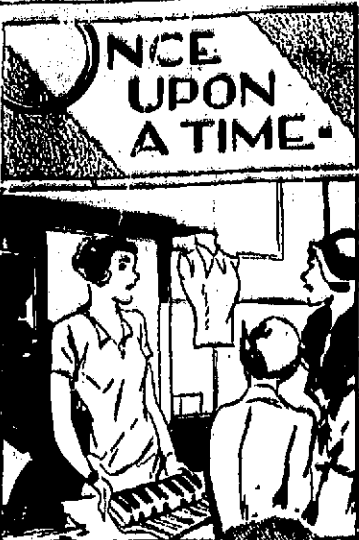

"I thought Cardui might help me. I began taking it and I soon began to improve. I grew stronger and was not so nervous. I slept well and I could eat."

"I took Cardui for several months, and all the time I was gaining in health and strength. I have taken Cardui during the spring, for several years, as I think it is an excellent tonic. It builds me up."

"Thousands of other women recommend Cardui, after having found it of valuable assistance to them in building up their health. This well-known medicine is an extract of valuable medicinal herbs, and contains nothing harmful or injurious."

HOME

It takes a heap of living in a house to make it home. A heap of sun an' shadder, and ye sometimes have t' room. 'Fore ye really prelate the things ye lo' behind. An' hunger fer 'em somehow, with 'em allus on yer mind. It don't make any difference how rich ye get to be. How much yer chairs on' tables cost, how great yer luxury; It ain't home t' yer, tho it be the palace of a king. Until somehow yer soul is sort o' wrapped round everything. We've got to love each brick and stone from cellar up t' dome; It takes a heap of livin' in a house to make it home.—E. A. Guest.

B. & P. W. Club Have April Meet

Mrs. Frank Hicks, Former President, of Club, Hostess

Mrs. Frank Hicks, a former president of the Hope B. & P. W. club was hostess at the regular meeting of the club yesterday evening in the private dining room of the Hotel Barlow, when a delicious five course dinner was served to the members and guests. An almost perfect attendance of the membership was noted.

A large bouquet of lovely red tulips and ferns graced the head of the table, and, since Mrs. Hicks had decided to pay attention to the major industry of the south, she favors were tiny bales of cotton and the bills of lading attached thereto were the place cards. Each member had been asked to wear cotton and the charming dresses they wore attested that one may be beautifully gowned without resorting to the more expensive materials which have been so much in vogue in recent years.

The program opened with community singing, in which "Dixie" was featured. Mrs. Hicks then introduced Mrs. Ruth Fleming who said that cotton is now one of the most popular fabrics for sale in ready-to-wear and in piece goods and is receiving much attention from leading stylists in America and abroad and materials fashioned from cotton lint may be purchased for from a few cents per yard to several dollars. Ready made dresses may be purchased for considerably less than one dollar each, or for as much as one hundred dollars, the price range being such as to satisfy the thinnest or thickest purse.

"But," said Mrs. Fleming, "fabrics form but a relatively small part of the value of cotton production in this country, and the many and varied uses to which this staple and its ally, cotton seed, are put would astonish many unfamiliar with the subject. In 1929, cotton seed was worth only $4.00 per ton; now it is worth about ten times as much. The value of products into which cotton seed enter as a constituent totals billions of dollars annually. The value of cotton seed meal, fertilizers produced from cotton seed and other by-products, amounts to millions of dollars and each year sees their uses multiplied."

Mrs. Fleming urged the greater use of cotton, foods derived from the cotton seed and products having their source in the cotton fields of the south as a stimulant to business and a means of helping the South to help itself.

Little Miss Mary Cornelia Holloway, accompanied by Miss Vollic Reed at the piano, delighted her audience with a solo tap dance, "Pickin' Cotton," and responded to an encore. This little lady possesses marked talent and much charm.

A contest, the designing of a wash dress, in which the artistic ability of these present was tested, resulted in Miss Anne Martindale winning the prize, a dainty wash dress. Little Miss Holloway won the second prize, a box of candy.

Community singing, with Miss Reed at the piano, featured, "Happy Little Homes in Arkansas," and "Painting the Clouds with Sunshine," and terminated the program.

Guests for the evening were Misses Bess and Annie Jean Walker who with Mrs. Charles Walker; Mary Cornelia Holloway who was Mrs. Hicks' guest; Mrs. Claude Nunn who accompanied Mrs. Barney Haman and Miss Maude Lile who was with Evelyn Lewis.

During a short business session, Mrs. Talbot Field and Miss Martha Jane Buecher, home demonstration agent, were unanimously received into the club.

The President, Miss Harrison, appointed a committee composed of Misses Genie Chamberlain, Forrest Ruggles and Mrs. Ruth Fleming to cooperate with committees from other civic organizations in an effort to bring about the closing of places of business on Thursday afternoons during the months of July and August. A nominating committee, Mrs. Florence Hicks, Mrs. Snow Stuart and Misses Beryl Henry and Anne Martindale, was appointed to report their recommendations for the officers for the ensuing year at the next regular meeting, which will be held on May 6th, with Miss Mary Ellington Arnold, hostess.

Troopers Stop 2 Trucks, Get Water Instead of Liqueur

PITTSBURGH, April 16.—(AP)—A couple of tired state troopers rubbed their noses as they made out a report that two trucks if cases and barrels they stopped near New Castle contained only mineral water.

The trucks were lumbering through the darkness late last night, when the troopers stopped the drivers.

"What are you hauling?" They demanded.

"Mineral water," grinned the drivers.

Two 4-H Clubs Have Meet; Agent Present

The Shover Springs and Green Laster 4-H club met last Friday afternoon. Both Mr. Smith and Miss Deucher were present and took of the local leaders. We first took up the business part of the meeting, and the only new business was that of appointing a committee to raise money to send delegates to Fayetteville. We are planning to have our club well represented there.

Miss Deucher gave the girls a lesson in patching, making club caps and aprons, and told us what to bring next time to begin the hooked rugs. Mr. Smith gave the boys a lesson in the production of clean milk which we know is very necessary if we expect to sell our milk at a good price. We know too that clean milk is a very important food.

Our percentage of attendance at this meeting was very low compared to that of previous meetings. We want every club member to be present at the next meeting which will be at Green Laster May 9, at 2 o'clock. We invite the parents to come out and be with us for we cannot make our club work a success without your cooperation.

Did George Washington name it for a real Sally Lunn?

WHO was Sally Lunn? Some say she was George Washington's housekeeper—who made a certain hot-bread that was so good he gave it her name. Others say that Sally once sold these famous tea-cakes on the streets of Bath, England. At any rate, you've heard of Sally Luns, but maybe you've never eaten the real one.

Here it is, straight from Virginia. A descendant of the first president's family gave me this recipe, with this improvement: she specifies Crisco, a modern shortening that tastes so sweet you just know it's bound to improve the flavor of anything you make with it.

SALLY LUNNS

1/2 cup Crisco
1/2 cup sugar
2 eggs (beaten)
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups flour

Cream Crisco and sugar together. Add beaten eggs and mix well. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt and add alternately with milk to the first mixture. Bake in a Criscoed shallow pan in hot oven (400° F.) 20 to 25 minutes.

HIGHLAND SCONES

This is a Caletonian hot-bread with an American accent—speed!

2 cups bread flour
1/2 cup milk
2 eggs
1/2 teaspoon salt
5 tablespoons Crisco
Jam or marmalade
2 tablespoons sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder

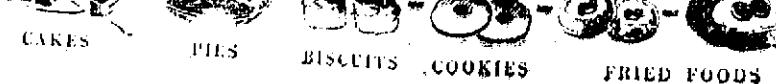

Blend Crisco with sifted dry ingredients. (No long process of cutting hard fat into the flour—Crisco is of workable consistency.) Stir in milk and eggs. Spoon dough onto oiled paper dusted with flour. Pat with hand to 1/4 inch thickness. Spread jam or marmalade over half the dough, cover with other half and press gently together. Cut into squares and then crosswise to form triangles. Brush with milk to give a rich brown glaze, and bake in hot oven (450° F.) from 10 to 15 minutes. Serve while hot for tea or breakfast. (Omit sugar from recipe and spread dough with 1/4 cup grated American or pimiento cheese instead of jam or marmalade and you'll have a delectable scone to serve with salad.)

REPORT SHOWS

Increased the demand for farm help with no shortage reported.

FORT SMITH—Employment decreases were registered in the iron and steel industry, lumber mills and textile mills. Several places reported part-time schedules, but the majority of major industries operated full time. A scissors factory worked over time. A surplus of skilled and unskilled labor existed. No new building projects were reported although an increase in volume was expected along this line. There was an ample supply of farm help for the increased demand.

FINE BLUFF—All plants were in operation, except several lumber mills which are closed for a period of 30 to 60 days. One feed mill reported part time. A number of railroad employees have been released for a temporary lay-off.

Employment gains occurred in the iron and steel industry and several miscellaneous industries. A surplus of unskilled labor was apparent. No large building projects were reported, but sufficient small building and repair projects were under way to employ the large majority of building-trades men. Starting of a $400,000 store building within the next 30 days will offer additional employment. Favorable weather conditions stimulated farming activities with no shortage of farm labor apparent.

JONESBORO—Fences employed in local manufacturing plants were held at nearly steady level with the exception of reduction in a few miscellaneous industries. All plants worked on full-time schedules with the exception of one lumber mill and one grain mill, which reported part time activities. A surplus of unskilled labor existed, but the supply of skilled workers appeared to be well employed. A fairly satisfactory building program continued under way with favorable prospects for increased activity.
